WHICH JOB? Answer the questions about the five jobs described below.

The following job descriptions relate to five jobs in the hospitality sector. Each job description contains four mixed-up words.

Employee 1: Alice (age 21)

"I work for a large LOTEH chain with over 1,000 employees. In the HR department we deal with issues such as recruitment, YAP, training, health and safety. My work is very varied. At the moment I am spending most of my time trying to make sure we recruit the STEB possible staff for the company. I help them settle in and then help them make progress by providing the right sort of GINNATIR."

Employee 2: Marie (age 24)

"I work for a large drinks company with a wide GREAN of products which are sold in shops as well as restaurants and bars. I plan advertising campaigns. I also organise public relations events and write SSEPR releases. Our company is very keen to help GOUNY people develop responsible attitudes to drinking and I am therefore working with teachers on a new NOTADUCEI pack."

Employee 3: Ali (age 19)

"I work in a top restaurant and I love my job. I don't simply serve SALME. As soon as diners arrive I try to make them feel relaxed. I advise people about the UNME and I have recently been on a RUSCOE about wine so I like helping them choose their wine – but only if I am asked. Eating out is about more than the food. People must NOYEJ everything about the occasion. If I do my job properly, they will."

Employee 4: Linda (age 36)

"I prefer to KWRO for myself rather than someone else. I hold the licence for a bar and bistro in a country village. There are very strict laws about the sale of alcohol and I must take care to obey them or I could SOLE my licence and thereby, my livelihood. I make sure my premises are always clean and attractive. They must also meet strict hygiene regulations because we REPRAP food. I want both my FASTF and customers to be happy. This takes a lot of hard work but it is very satisfying when things go well."

Employee 5: Ben (age 28)

"The UK no longer has as many factories as it used to but we now make a lot of money from ROUTMIS. And when tourists visit they eat out a lot ... which is where I come in. I'm in charge of a large city RENTEC restaurant and boy, do I have a busy job. Lots of tourists as well as British people eat here and therefore I have to make sure the food and drink are excellent and that my staff are PAHYP, well DENTAIR and understand the laws and regulations. My job is busy and challenging ... and I love it!"

ACTIVITIES:

1. Unscramble the mixed-up words in the job descriptions.
2. Match up the following jobs with the workers' names:
Restaurant Manager; Licensee; Waiter;
Human Relations Manager; Marketing Manager.
3. Ali needs to be good at communicating with people. Why?
4. Explain why Linda needs to understand the law.
5. Suggest something each worker enjoys about his or her job.
6. Which of the above jobs most appeals to you? Say why.
